

Deposit of Thesis

All M.S. students are required to deposit a copy of their thesis at Memorial Library on or before specific semester deadlines. It is very important to adhere to the guidelines of the Graduate School. For information about completing an M.S. degree and thesis, see the web pages at <http://info.gradsch.wisc.edu/admin/academicservices/mdegree.html> and <http://info.gradsch.wisc.edu/admin/academicservices/mguide.html> or check with the Graduate School.

While the program strongly encourages environment and resources students to publish journal articles based on their thesis research, a journal article or simple compilation of journal articles cannot be substituted for the thesis. Journal articles are typically limited in length and scope. A thesis should be an integrated document, with significantly more detail than a typical journal article.

Additional copies of one's thesis should be distributed to the following: major professors should receive a bound copy; faculty committee members should be contacted to determine their need for a copy. Finally, the Environment and Resources Program requires a bound copy of all theses as well as an abstract of 100-350 words. A paper and electronic copy of your abstract (preferably via email in Word) should be submitted to the Academic Programs Office.
